

Cuban Five send message to the Haitian people

THE Cuban Five, held as political prisoners in the United States for fighting terrorism, have sent a message of encouragement and hope to the Haitian people, devastated by a powerful earthquake.

The message, published on the CubaDebate website, emphasizes that at this tragic and painful time the Haitian people are experiencing, the Five send their condolences to the relatives of the victims of this catastrophe.

"We are sure," the message says, "that the determination of the Haitian people, together with international support, will make the recovery of your country possible. In that work, you will always have the help in solidarity of the Cuban people."

Ramón Labañino, René González, Gerardo Hernández, Fernando González and Antonio Guerrero ended their message with a warm and fraternal embrace for the long-suffering Haitian people.
